SPIRITUALITY IN EVERY DAY LIFE

Spirituality is in essence of knowing how to live. Through this knowing there is happiness. True spirituality is not a system of worship or rituals but a positive attitude towards ourselves and others.

God has created this world and desires his children to pay a significant role in spiritual revelation. As the children of god we are to serve the world. We should always remain in the awareness of our elevated occupation. Our love to serve others will give all human beings the peace and power and we will receive the fruits and power of this service in the form of true happiness.

While performing KARMA whenever we sow the seed of KARMA check the quality of the seed i.e the motive, sow it in the ground of an elevated or powerful awareness. Water it with constant pure thoughts and feelings and also give it the wants his children to be well wisher of even those who keeps evil feelings. A man should consider himself a guest while plaving the worthy role.

Man should surrender ourselves to god with the sense of god's realization. Surrender to god is complete self giving in a sense of delight and in a spirit stainless devotion and humbleness. Surrender god is to submissiveness nor an act of helplessness. Surrender to God means working with complete enthusiasm in this universe an attached and without selfish motive Lastly, give your best and god will give you what you have not and give spiritual nourishment to your soul everyday.

Multilingualism under the national education policy, 2020

Hello readers my name is Preeti sharma and I am thrileed to have this apportunity to share this article with you through the page of this magezine . "It is the supreme art of the assistant professor to awken the joy increative expression and knowledge. National Education Policy 2020 Indian cultural etthics believes in "Ekam sat Vipraha Bahuda Vadanti which means "Truth (God) is one, but is celebrated by different people in different ways". Language Plays a vital role in shaping individual, cognition and the overall identity of people. Multiligualism language in colleges and within society is widespread and it has contributed to making most Indians Proficient in multiple languages. This multilingual in our education system, as the curriculam emphasizes the acquistion of various languages. The National Education policy (NEP) 2020 reorgnizes the signification of multilingualism and consensuses. The language education section of the NEP is titled "Multilingualism and power of language" underlining the policy's commitment to promoting and emprocing linguistic diversity in the educatonal landscape. It can be assumed that the steps recommended by NEP-2020 will not only promote the language of India but also promote the language of India but will also help in the preservation of rich cultural and traditional values.

Ms. Preeti Sharma (Assistant professor)

We are living in an age, in which vast technological changes have wrought widespread transformations in social and cultural conditions. Human behavior becomes empty and education becomes directionless without values. Today we are living in a world of paradox; on the one hand, science and technology are advancing very fast while, on the other hand, most societies are facing problems of alcohol and drug abuse, mental illness, stress, crime etc. Therefore value should be introduced at the school level.

The teaching community today faces an endless and challenging task of imparting value education and value based education. The impact of inculcating values among students by the teachers is in fact colossal and quite lasting against many destructive non-values such as egotism, arrogance, domination, corruption and money-power in the society based on justice, equality and common fellow-ship. As teachers have always claimed a special capacity to influence conduct and to shape moral character, the society expects them to develop not only knowledge but also ethical values among students thus creating an environment that would foster fraternity amongst mankind. Realising this need our curriculum needs to insist on educating the young students in the art of living with values. If learning remains detached from value judgments, scholarship runs the risk of degenerating into indifference. Value judgments actually enhance the accuracy of learning. Teachers, therefore, should be aware of the important role they are called upon to play as as professional and citizens, as agents of development and change. They must make an effort to light a candle instead of cursing the darkness and sow the seeds of value education with a fondhope that they would diffuse their own fragrance towards the creation of a just and new society as they sprout and blossom. But the question is, Can we be good role models if we are not ethical ourselves? We as an educator, must think about it.

VALUE EDUCATION FOR THE COLLEGE STUDENTS

Though educators have made significant contributions by using different classroom situations to inculcate values but still our students' continue to face many problems. This is an age, when the past is irrelevant, the present uncertain and the future confused and fearful. Traditional values have never been so radically rejected and rules so violently violated as they are today. The young find a gap between the teachers, professed and lived values. They search for answers to the three basic questions: who am I? Why am I here? Where am I going? In other words they search for their identity, for a purpose in life and for a meaningful human destiny, individually and historically. However, this search is difficult as their vision is blurred, due to the various pressures from within themselves.

It is the teacher who caters to this need of theirs by giving them a sense of inner-directedness through a clarification of their personal values. They carve for the warmth of friendship and the capacity to relate meaningfully. They need opportunities for relaxed, unthreatened and non-competitive relationships. While they yearn for friendship, they need a model to follow. Teachers are their best models. The role of a teacher in shaping the character of students is of paramount importance because various forms of counseling form the parents is becoming increasingly uncommon. \\

CONCLUSION

Value education, directly or indirectly, attempts to help students answer some of the basic questions they ask themselves, through positive approach and attitudinal changes. Values-clarification process will enable them to live by conviction rather than convenience. Knowledge of values, attitudes, needs and their ideas and actual selves, will lead them to an awareness of self and others, thus making their interactions and responses more fruitful. Research has proved that one-student develops a sense of purpose and direction which, consequently, provides a basis for vividual and unified collective action. It will also unable them to make choices which would help in their personal growth and enrich their common growth and enrich the growth and enrich the Education is the greatest determinant of sucess. It helps in unlocking several opportunities and empowers an individual to develop crucial skill to lead a fulfilling life. For decades, our India policy makers have envisioned a world class education system through various education policies. However our Indian education system still battles with many unresolved challenges that need to be addressed. Quality education includes safe, healthy and gender -sensitive environment for students. Relevant material and curricula for acquisition of basic skills. Well-managed classrooms and teaching approaches led by trained teachers. Learning outcomes that encompass national goals and are linked to one's positive participation in society.

माँ

जब अकेला रही तो उसकी याद आयी , अँधेरे में थी तो उसकी याद आयी। जब भूख लगी तो उसकी याद आयी नींद नहीं आयी तो उसकी याद आयी। सोचने में कितनी आसान लगती थी ये ज़िंदगी जब खुद से जीना सीखा तो उसकी याद आयी। तभी भी लगा की माँ इतनी मतलब कैसे हो सकती है हमसे भी ज्यादा हमारे लिए कैसे सो सकती है। लेकिन सच तो ये है की वो माँ ही होती है जो हमारा पेट भरकर खुद भूखी रहती है।

In my life...
Many people came,
Many people left,
Only you remain
Just the same.
You're not just anyone,
Who will leave my hand
In this crowd but
You'll pull me out
While holding my hand tightly.
Darling....you're the very soul to

You're the wholesome sunshine
Who makes me smile.
